

Juror: Jeannie Vodden

It was such a pleasure to view each artwork entered into the show.

Of all the work entered, some gave me a chuckle, some made me wonder about the story behind the image. Some were crafted by wonderfully skilled artists. I wandered through all of the pieces, getting a glimpse of each artist's world through their painting(s).

Painting is a visual type of communication. It touches us in a different way than words do. But it is communication. As we move along the path, honing our skills and deciding what and how we want to paint, we gain insights into ourselves and our beautiful and strange world. We can run into discouragements, road-blocks and sometimes it's smooth sailing. It's important to be resilient...not to let the disappointments, or even thrills keep us from putting brush to paper and just seeing what we can do.

Thank you for entering!! Congratulations to the artists whose work was selected for the show. And high praise to the pieces which received the awards! ——Jeannie Vodden
